Transfer between Study Programmes

A transfer between study programmes is valid for all second-cycle study programmes (single-subject, dual-subject) at the Faculty of Arts.

A transfer is possible between programmes of the same study cycle, i.e. between second-cycle programmes.

Transfers are possible between study programmes
- that offer comparable competencies upon graduating, and
- that allow for the transfer of at least of half of the credits from the first study programme to the new programme, according to the European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (hereinafter ECTS).

The student may enrol in a higher study year of another programme under the condition that the required amount of those credit points necessary to proceed to a higher year of the state-approved study programme are recognised during the transfer process.

(*There is an additional condition for the second-cycle Master's study programme in Interpreting: the student must pass a test of interpreting abilities.)

Enrolment in the first year of a study programme does not count as a transfer between programmes.

The following may be recognised during the transfer process:
- comparable study obligations that the student has completed during his or her first year, and
- informally acquired knowledge.

Any knowledge the student might have obtained in advance must be substantiated by submitting relevant documentation.

In compliance with the conditions required for a transfer, the recognition of study commitments are examined and decided on by the competent body of the faculty on the basis of the candidate's individual application and the proposal of the department, following the procedure set out in the Statute of the University of Ljubljana.

If the student has completed study obligations at a foreign higher education institution, he or she must apply for recognition of a foreign education by submitting the appropriate form according to the Recognition and Evaluation of Education Act. The application must include all necessary documents.

XXVI. Second-Cycle Master's Study Programme: Psychology

Duration: 2 years

Admission Requirements:
The admission requirements correspond with Article 38a and Article 38b of the Higher Education Act and with Article 91 of the Statute of the University of Ljubljana. A prospective student is eligible to apply for admission under any of the following conditions:

a) she or he has completed a first-cycle study programme from the field of Psychology;
b) she or he has completed a first-cycle programme in a related field, under the condition that the candidate has completed those study obligations required for the continuation of study, up to maximum of 60 ECTS, prior to enrolment. Related fields include the following: social work, pedagogy and andragogy, social aedagogy, special and rehabilitation pedagogy, education for the visually impaired and the pedagogy of specific learning difficulties, or biopsychology. The candidate may complete the required obligations during first-cycle study, as part of a training programme, or by taking the differential exams before enrolment in Master's study.

A candidate who has completed a study programme in one of the following fields: social work, pedagogy and andragogy, social pedagogy, special and rehabilitation pedagogy, education for the visually impaired and the pedagogy of specific learning difficulties, or biopsychology, is required to complete study obligations in the form of the following courses from the accredited study programme in Psychology (at the Faculty of Arts of the University of Ljubljana): Multivariate Methods (5 ECTS), Test Theory (7 ECTS), Motivation and Emotion (6 ECTD), Cognitive Psychology (9 ECTS), Introduction to Clinical Psychology (4 ECTS), and Occupational Psychology (8 ECTS). Additionally, candidates who have completed a certain first-cycle study programme are required to complete the following study obligations:

- Candidates who have completed a first-cycle university study programme in social work: Developmental Child Psychology (6 ECTS), The Psychology of Adolescence and Adulthood (5 ECTS), and The Psychology of Learning (7 ECTS);
- Candidates who have completed a first-cycle university study programme in pedagogy and andragogy: The Psychology of Social Power and Social Influence (5 ECTS), The Social Construction of Reality (6 ECTS), Attitudes, Social Cognition, and Representation (6 ECTS), and Introduction to Counselling and Psychotherapy (3 ECTS);
- Candidates who have completed a first-cycle university study programme in social pedagogy: Personality Psychology (7 ECTS), The Psychology of Social Power and Social Influence (5 ECTS), and Views, Social Cognition, and Representation (6 ECTS);
- Candidates who have completed a first-cycle university study programme in special and rehabilitation pedagogy or a first-cycle university study programme in education for the visually impaired and the pedagogy of specific learning difficulties: Personality Psychology (7 ECTS), The Psychology of Social Power and Social Influence (5 ECTS), Social Psychology: Interaction, Group, and Application (5 ECTS), and Introduction to Counselling and Psychotherapy (3 ECTS);

Candidates who have completed a first-cycle study programme in Biopsychology from the University of Primorska are required to completed the following differential exams from the first-cycle study programme in Psychology at the Faculty of Arts of the University of Ljubljana before enrolling in second-cycle study: Developmental Child Psychology (6 ECTS), The Psychology of Adolescence and Adulthood (5 ECTS), Applied Developmental Psychology (5 ECTS), Introduction to Social Psychology (3 ECTS), The Psychology of Social Power and

Social Influence (5 ECTS), Social Psychology: Interaction, Group, and Application (5 ECTS), Introduction to Clinical Psychology (4 ECTS), Introduction to Counselling and Psychotherapy (3 ECTS), The Psychology of Learning (7 ECTS), The Psychology of Teaching (8 ECTS), and Occupational Psychology (8 ECTS);

c) she or he has completed a first-cycle study programme from other fields, under the condition that the completed programme included content related to the contents of the first-cycle study programme in Psychology (Faculty of Arts of the University of Ljubljana) equivalent to at least 50 ECTS, and that she or he has completed those study obligations required for the continuation of study (10 to 60 ECTS) prior to enrolment. Based on the submitted programme of the candidate's first-cycle study and other certificates proving the candidate's competencies, the faculty's senate, upon recommendation of the Department of Psychology, decides whether or not the aforementioned programme contains enough relation to the first-cycle study in Psychology that would allow for enrolment. In this case, the senate also determines the additional study obligations that the candidate must complete before enrolling in Master's study.

In accordance with Article 91 of the Statute of the University of Ljubljana, the admission requirements are also satisfied by anyone who has successfully completed an equivalent first-cycle education abroad. The equivalence is determined during the procedure of recognition and the evaluation of foreign education for the purposes of the continuation of study. The procedure is managed by a person, authrosied by the University of Ljubljana, and the decision on the recognition of a foreign education is made by the faculty's dean, in accordance with Article 70 of the Statute of the University of Ljubljana. All candidates must demonstrate knowledge of Slovene at level B2 according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR) with an appropriate certificate. Proper evidence of compliance with the conditions for enrollment are:

- A certificate of passing the examination of Slovene at the B2 level or equivalent certificate,
- Certificate of completed primary school in Slovenia or completed foreign primary school with Slovene as teaching language,
- High school diploma or certificate from last year of secondary professional education which contained subject Slovene,
- Certificate of completion of the bilingual (in Slovene and foreign language) secondary education or the completion of a foreign secondary education with Slovene teaching language,
- Diploma from a higher education institution in Slovenia and the certificate (statement) that the applicant has passed the program in the Slovene.

Selection Criteria and Procedure in the Case of Limited Enrolment
If the number of applicants exceeds the number of available positions, candidates will be selected on the basis of the average grade achieved during undergraduate study. For candidates who have completed study programmes other than Psychology, the grades received at the differential exams will also be considered.
